Course Description
The philosophy of economics is concerned with conceptual, methodological, foundational and ethical issues in economic theory and practice. In this course, we'll consider questions such as:

- What can philosophy of science teach us about economic methodology?
- What makes a particular conclusion in economics justified or true?
- How do economic models work?
- What are implications of modeling people as self-interested utility maximizers of utility?
- Does economic methodology reflect gendered presuppositions?
- What is at stake in the debate over classical versus behavioral economics?
- How do value-based considerations play a role in economic reasoning and policy?
- Is cost-benefit analysis an appropriate method of decision-making?
- How do conceptual matters impact applications?
- How do post-colonial and feminist perspectives challenge standard methodology in economics?

Course Requirements
Since this is a seminar, attendance at each meeting is essential. If you expect to miss any of the meetings let me know as soon as possible and we can discuss. If you miss any meetings, it may impact your grade; if you miss more than three meetings for any reason you may not be able pass the course. I will use LEARN for announcements etc. so please check it regularly.

Every two weeks, you'll have to submit a 300-600-word paper on the readings. This paper should examine critically some particular idea from one of the texts assigned for that day, and should have a thesis and argument. These will be graded out of 10 points. These must be submitted via the LEARN dropbox, in PDF format, before noon the Monday before the class for which they apply. Depending on how our discussions go, I may ask you to read your paper in class so we can discuss the ideas as a class. During weeks that you are not writing a short paper, you are required to come up with a discussion question for class, also submitted via the LEARN dropbox. These will not be graded, but failing to hand them in will count against your participation grade.
Participation in class discussion is also an important part of the course. There are several ways to participate in this class: you can participate in class discussion, or by contributing to the discussion on LEARN, or by emailing or speaking with me personally. If you raise questions or offer comments or responses twice each week or so, the participation part of your grade will be a B or 75%. More frequent participation will raise your grade, less frequent participation will lower it. If you attend class without participating, your grade for participation will be D or 55. Participation is worth 10% of your grade.

There is one long paper required, which should be 4500-6000 words. Everyone will do a presentation toward the end of the term, but the scheduling will depend on enrollment. The idea is for you to present a work-in-progress version of your final paper, which you can then revise in response to feedback and questions. When you do your presentation, you must also submit a version of your paper that represents the content of your presentation. You can present in any style you like -- slides, talking, reading, whatever -- but this paper should contain the ideas of your presentation expressed in written-paper style. I will comment on this, and you should use these comments to improve the final version of the paper to be handed in during the exam period. The final version of the final draft will be due December 18th at 5:00pm, again via the LEARN dropbox.

Students enrolled in Phil 675 should consult with me about completing the assignments in ways that satisfy the applied philosophy component of the course.

Course Schedule and Readings (all readings will be posted on LEARN):

Week 1 (Jan 7): Introduction, background, and Adam Smith

Assessment

- Participation: 10%
- Short papers: 10%
- Presentation: 10%
- Presentation paper: 20%
- Final paper: 50%

Late Work

If you experience unexpected difficulties like illness or personal difficulties, please let me know as soon as possible. Obviously it's best to just submit everything on time. But if you must be late, I will subtract one point per day (out of ten) for the weekly papers and three percentage points (out of 100) per day for the presentation and final paper. If anything arises that gets in the way of you doing your work for this class, please do not hesitate to talk to me: I'm here to help and I'll do what I can.

Information on Plagiarism Detection

No formal or technological plagiarism detection mechanisms will be used in this class.

Electronic Device Policy

Laptops or mobile devices can support your learning in this class, but they can also be a source of distraction for you and other students around you. Please turn off all sound notifications. before you enter the classroom. You are welcome to use your devices for course-related activities such as taking notes, researching lecture topics, collaborating on group projects, viewing documents in LEARN, and communicating with other students about the course material. You are not permitted to use these devices for non-course-related activities. During activities that do not require these devices, you may be asked to close or put them away. Please ask me beforehand if you wish to make an audio recording of class material. If you have concerns or comments about how the use of laptops or mobile devices is affecting your learning during the course, please don't hesitate to talk to me and we can work something out.
Cross-listed course (requirement for all Arts courses)
Please note that a cross-listed course will count in all respective averages no matter under which rubric it has been taken. For example, a PHIL/PSCI cross-list will count in a Philosophy major average, even if the course was taken under the Political Science rubric.

Academic Integrity
In order to maintain a culture of academic integrity, members of the University of Waterloo are expected to promote honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility. Check the Office of Academic Integrity website for more information.

Discipline
A student is expected to know what constitutes academic integrity to avoid committing an academic offence, and to take responsibility for his/her actions. [Check the Office of Academic Integrity for more information.] A student who is unsure whether an action constitutes an offence, or who needs help in learning how to avoid offences (e.g., plagiarism, cheating) or about “rules” for group work/collaboration should seek guidance from the course instructor, academic advisor, or the undergraduate associate dean. For information on categories of offences and types of penalties, students should refer to Policy 71, Student Discipline. For typical penalties, check Guidelines for the Assessment of Penalties.

Grievance
A student who believes that a decision affecting some aspect of his/her university life has been unfair or unreasonable may have grounds for initiating a grievance. Read Policy 70, Student Petitions and Grievances, Section 4. When in doubt, please be certain to contact the department’s administrative assistant who will provide further assistance.

Appeals
A decision made or penalty imposed under Policy 70, Student Petitions and Grievances (other than a petition) or Policy 71, Student Discipline may be appealed if there is a ground. A student who believes he/she has a ground for an appeal should refer to Policy 72, Student Appeals.

Accommodation for Students with Disabilities
Note for students with disabilities: AccessAbility Services, located in Needles Hall, Room 1401, collaborates with all academic departments to arrange appropriate accommodations for students with disabilities without compromising the academic integrity of the curriculum. If you require academic accommodations to lessen the impact of your disability, please register with AccessAbility Services at the beginning of each academic term.

Academic freedom at the University of Waterloo
Policy 33, Ethical Behaviour states, as one of its general principles (Section 1), “The University supports academic freedom for all members of the University community. Academic freedom carries with it the duty to use that freedom in a manner consistent with the scholarly obligation to base teaching and research on an honest and ethical quest for knowledge. In the context of this policy, 'academic freedom' refers to academic activities, including teaching and scholarship, as is articulated in the principles set out in the Memorandum of Agreement between the FAUW and the University of Waterloo, 1998 (Article 6). The academic environment which fosters free debate may from time to time include the presentation or discussion of unpopular opinions or controversial material. Such material shall be dealt with as openly, respectfully and sensitively as possible.” This definition is repeated in Policies 70 and 71, and in the Memorandum of Agreement, Section 6.
